1 Introduction

This modular training programme has been developed based on the analysis of employers' requirements included in the description of the "Standard of professional competence for a mentor in the eco-industry".

This programme is composed of three vocational training modules and corresponding 8 modular units that are equal to professional tasks performed in the mentor's work.

The programme's modular structure consists of:

- programme and organisational assumptions of training
- teaching plans
- vocational training modules and modular units

Every vocational training module includes the learning outcomes, a list of modular units, scheme of the modular unit system, recommended literature and source materials.

The modular unit programme includes learning outcomes, proposals for teaching materials, proposals for exercises, proposal for didactic resources, methodical recommendations for the modular unit implementation, and proposed methods of verification and assessment of the candidate's achievements.

The didactic map of the vocational training programme included in the training programme and organizational assumptions present the scheme of correlations between the modules and modular units, as well as the specified sequence for their implementation. It shall make it easier for training organisers and trainers to plan and organise a didactic process, as well as to develop individual vocational training paths for mentors-to-be.

The training programme's structure is flexible, its modules and modular units may be updated (modified, supplemented or replaced) without compromising the integrity of the programme's structure. The content can therefore be adjusted to the changing needs of the labour market, scientific and technological development and learners' capacities.

The training, which is, based on this modular programme is characterised by the following features:

- a teaching and learning process which is oriented towards the achievement of specific, measurable learning outcomes in the form of knowledge, skills and social competences enabling to perform specific professional tasks
- the broad application of the principle of transfer of knowledge, skills and social competences previously acquired by a candidate in the course of formal, informal and non-formal (in a working environment) education
- learning mainly by doing with the use of activating teaching methods, which, on the one hand, trigger activity, creativity, learner's capacity of self-assessment, and, on the other hand, trainer's role goes towards being an advisor, partner, designer, organiser and evaluator of the didactic process

Upon the completion of all modular units foreseen in the programme, participants of the training shall get the training certificate, confirming their competence required for the "Mentor in the eco-industry sector".

2 Glossary

The table below shows the system of terms and definitions used during the development of the modular training programme. It was based on the Modules of Employable Skills (MES).

Modular programme of vocational training	Documentation of vocational training defining learning outcomes, the scope and arrangement of teaching and learning methods and teaching aids (including materials for the implementation of activities). The selection of the content of modular training programme based on the analysis of professional tasks occurring in the profession.
Module	The scope of work corresponding to the professional competence separated in the professional competence standard, expressed in the form of modular units. It is a separate part of the modular training programme consisting of a set of learning outcomes associated with a given professional competence, which effects are described in the modular units, bringing students to the achievement of learning outcomes in the a form of knowledge, skills and personal and social competencies.
Modular unit	It is a logical and acceptable segment of work within the profession with clearly defined beginning and end, corresponding to a specific training. The result is a product, service or important decision. The job task requires a professional exposure of the employee to items such as tools, equipment, other people, information, data, events, conditions, environment, etc.
Teaching map of the modular training programme	It is a graphical block diagram showing the correlations that exist between the modules and modular units singled in a vocational training programme. The correlation system of the modules and modular units allows for the optimal organization of educational classes and training division of the group.
Knowledge	Means the body of facts, principles, theories and practices that are related to a field of work or study. It is described as theoretical and/or factual knowledge.
Skills	Means the ability to apply knowledge and use know-how to complete tasks and solve problems. They are described as cognitive (logical, intuitive and creative thinking) or practical (involving manual dexterity and the use of methods, materials, tools and instruments).
Competence	Means the proven ability to use knowledge, skills and personal, social and methodological abilities in work or study situations and in professional and personal development. It is described in terms of responsibility and autonomy.
Unit of learning outcomes	A component of a qualification consisting of a coherent set of knowledge, skills and competences that can be assessed and validated. Units of learning outcomes can be specific to a single qualification or common to several qualifications and may also describe so-called additional qualifications which are not part of a formal qualification or curriculum.

Assessment of learning outcomes	Means methods and processes used to establish the extent to which a learner has in fact attained particular knowledge, skills and competences.
Validation of learning outcomes	Means the process of confirming that certain assessed learning outcomes achieved by a learner correspond to specific outcomes which may be required for a unit or a qualification.
Recognition of learning outcomes	Means the process of attesting officially achieved learning outcomes through the awarding of units or qualifications.
Work Based Learning (WBL)	Is an educational strategy that provides students with real-life work experiences where they can apply academic and technical skills.

3 Programme and organisational assumptions of training

3.1 Description of the profession/qualifications position in classifications

3.1.1 International Standard Classification of Education ISCED 2011:

- Level 5
- Category 44 (Post-secondary non-tertiary general education)
- Subcategory 444 (Recognised successful completion of a short-cycle tertiary general programme (or stage) insufficient for level completion)

3.1.2 International Standard Classification of Occupations (ISCO-08)

- Group 2424 Training and staff development professionals

3.3 Recommendations concerning organisation of the teaching and learning process

The training programme should be carried out in accordance with an enclosed proposal (see scheme below) of “Didactic map of the modular vocational training programme”. It is a system of connections between modules and modular units of the programme, determining a sequence of their implementation. It shall be used by training organisers to plan teaching.

A mentor, while executing the training programme, should have an appropriate background within the scope of the methodology of modular education, activating teaching methods, didactic measurement, as well as designing and developing educational packages.

It is recommended that modular education is carried out with activating methods, such as the guiding text method, self-directed learning method, situational method and the method of projects and practical exercises. Practical exercises in the workplace are the dominant method in the training programme. It is recommended to use didactic films and organise didactic trips. In the course of programme, attention should be paid to self-learning with the use of materials other than handbooks, such as standards, manuals, guides and extra textual sources of information. Modern technologies, materials, tools and equipment should be considered in the execution of teaching content and in self-education (also through the use of e-learning).

An essential element of the organization of the teaching process is the system of checking and evaluating the learning achievements of the learner.

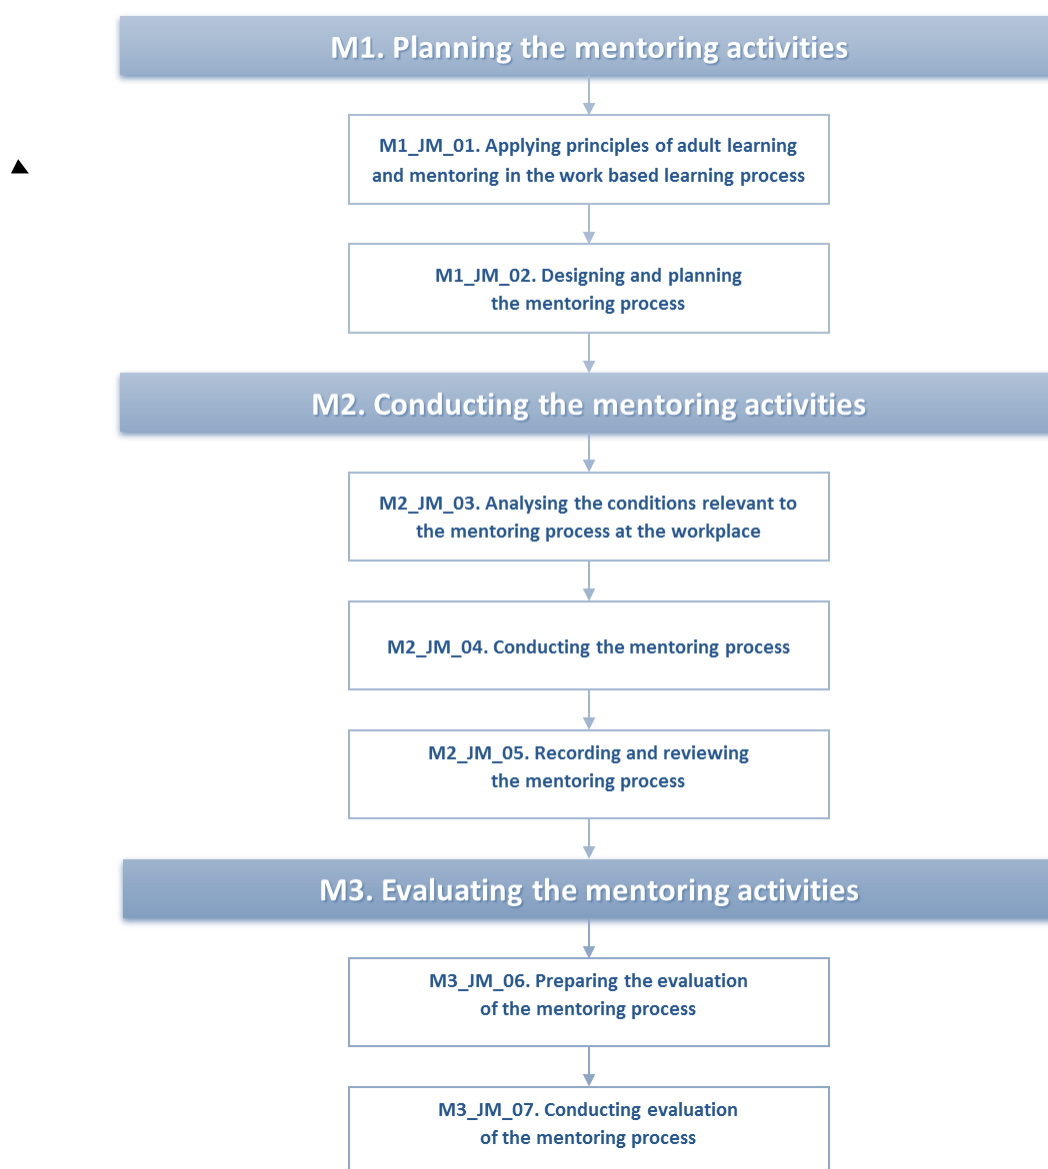

Assessment should make a candidate aware of a level of its achievements in relation to requirements defined in the professional competence standard. Assessment of participants' achievements should be conducted with the use of tests (oral, written and practical), observation of participant's actions, didactic measurement. Verification and assessment of achievements require defining the criteria and standards of assessment, developing achievement tests, observation sheets, and progress assessment sheets.

An approximate number of hours for completion of modules described in the training plan may be subject to changes, depending on the applied teaching methods and didactic resources.

The didactic resources, necessary in the modular training process, include didactic aids and materials, technical means of education, didactic means of work.

There is no division into theoretical and practical classes in the modular training. Organisational forms of participants' work should be adjusted to the curriculum content and methods. It is recommended that general classes are conducted in groups of up to a maximum of 20 people. Exercises should be organised in two to four-person teams or individually.

3.4 Didactic map of the modular training programme for mentors in eco-industry sector

3.5 Proposals of methods of verification and assessment of learners' achievements

The verification of the training participant's achievements should occur through the whole time of implementation of a modular unit, based on the established criteria. Knowledge necessary for the execution of practical exercises may be verified with use of tests available on an e-learning platform. It is proposed to verify practical skills through the observation of regularity of performed actions during the performance of exercises and assessment of a presentation of the performance of a given exercise in a team or individually. While observing actions of a candidate during the performance of exercises and assessing work, attention should be paid to:

- A comparison of the exercise performance with the assumptions included in the instruction
- verification of the compliance of achieving a learning outcome by a candidate foreseen for a given exercise

Prior to the commencement of the exercise performance, the candidate knowledge, of theoretical framework foreseen in the content of educational packages on the EcoMentor e-learning platform, should be verified. Depending on the conditions it may be a written or oral test. A candidate may only commence the exercise performance when such a test is completed and passed.

During the candidate's performance one should observe work of participants and assess results in the following categories:

performed positively or not performed positively.

In the case of incorrect performance, a training candidate should perform the exercise again with a repeated quality assessment.

4 Vocational training modules and modular units

4.1 Module 1 – Planning the mentoring activities

4.1.1 Learning outcomes (educational outcomes) for Module 1 – Planning the mentoring activities

Knowledge & Understanding (training candidate knows and understands)
Values, ethics, and principles underpinning mentoring
Role of mentor in learning process
Stages of the mentoring process and the critical factors of success in each stage
Information and resources needed for mentoring
Models and methods for analysis and identification with the learner their needs and requirements which can be met by mentoring
Ways of effectively establishing the rules and boundaries of the mentoring relationship
Methods for identification of learning objectives and learner's goals which the work-based mentoring programme aims to meet
Legal and organisational requirements relating to data protection, privacy, and confidentiality
Principles of Adult Education and VET
Different learning styles and learning capabilities
Methods used to develop and agree with the learner plans and to implement individual learning programmes including timescale, objectives, measures of success and review and assessment requirements
Ways of preparing and agreeing on the contractual arrangements with the learner according to organisational policies and procedures
Understand record keeping requirements for documents pertaining to the mentoring planning process
Performance criteria, skills (training candidate can, is able to)
Prepare for the mentoring process in terms of time and resources
Prepare the workplace for mentoring activities (inform the learner and inform others)
Identify and agree with the learner their requirements which can be met by mentoring
Agree on the rules and boundaries of the mentoring relationship and understand how they will be recognised and maintained
Assess and accommodate individual learner's objectives and needs using models and methods
Evaluate which types of learning would be most effective for the learner
Develop and agree on the plan of the mentoring programme with the learner and where relevant with key people in the work organisation
Use structured learning goals to plan workplace learning, agreeing with the learner appropriate measures for success for the review and evaluation
Ensure that contractual arrangements reflecting expected outcomes of the mentoring programme are put into place before beginning the mentoring process and agree with the learner the rules for their recording and updating
Maintain mentor planning records in line with corporate policy
Behaviours (common for M1)
Take responsibility for own work approach and role
Build and maintain rapport over sustained periods
Act in a way that shows you are willing to help the learner

Create and maintain an effective relationship with the learner that will help the learner to reach their professional goals
Respect the client's need for information, commitment and confidentiality within legal and organisational requirements
Adapt your personal style to empathise with different types of learner
Listen and respond effectively and check understanding
Seek to understand people's needs and motivations
Invite a two-way exchange of information and feedback with the learner and others
Enable the learner to take responsibility for and ownership of their objectives and goals
Comply with, and ensure that others comply with, legal requirements, industry regulations, organisational policies and procedures and professional codes
Identify opportunities for mentoring
Encourage colleagues and stakeholders to recognise mentoring as a way to create and support a culture of learning and development in the organization

4.1.2 Modular units for Module 1 – Planning the mentoring activities

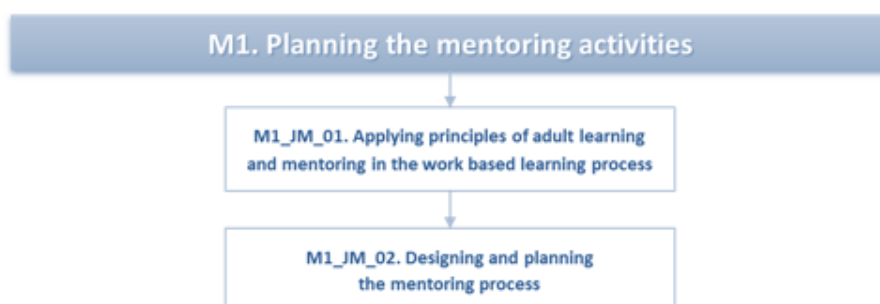

Training module name	Modular unit name	Approximate number of hours for completion
Module 1 - Planning the mentoring activities	M1.01. Applying principles of adult learning and mentoring in the work based learning process	6
	M1.02. Designing and planning the mentoring process	6

4.1.3 Scheme of the modular unit system for Module 1 – Planning the mentoring activities

This scheme presents the correlation of modular units in the Module 1 of the vocational training.

The learner must start the programme of this module with the modular unit M1.01. Applying principles of adult learning and mentoring in the work based learning process.

Then the candidate realizes the training programme for modular unit M1.02. Designing and planning the mentoring process.

4.1.4 Modular unit M1.01. Applying principles of adult learning and mentoring in the work based learning process

4.1.4.2 Methodical guidelines for the implementation of a modular unit M1.01

Prior to the commencement of the implementation of a modular unit, one should become acquainted with detailed learning outcomes, select and plan an appropriate set of exercises using proposals included in the modular unit programme. Implementation of this modular unit should last 6 didactic hours, including time dedicated to presentation and a training part.

Activating and expository methods, presentation, guiding text methods, practical exercises should be applied in the training process. It is recommended to conduct practical exercises in two-four-person groups, enabling participants to conduct them many times, until satisfying proficiency is achieved.
